1980 FOOTBALL GUIDE

PROSPECTUS

With a varied aerial arsenal at hand, plus eight starters back from the defensive unit, Salisbury State has an excellent chance to keep in tact its record of never suffering a losing season.

The Sea Gulls finished their eighth year of football with a 6-3 ledger in 1979. The season was the first for which the Gulls received votes for the nation's Top 10 in NCAA Division III, but faint hopes for postseason consideration were obliterated by a crushing 63-10 loss to playoff bound Millersville State in the season finale.

Second-year coach Bill Yeagle expects a bountiful recruiting campaign to reap significant dividends this fall, but has the nucleus returning to field a formidable squad already.

Junior Chuck Hebron broke every base-stealing record in the books on the Gull baseball team his first two years, then, in his initial season of college football last autumn, smashed all the single season pass receiving standards. Hebron, who hauled in 26 aerials, seven for TDs, also returned a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown. He is complimented by the Gulls' other fine wide receiver, flanker Jimmy Jones whose speed and fancy moves will put added pressure on opposing secondaries.

Senior quarterback Bob Brosmer established a new record for passing yards despite starting only five games. Yet he will start the 1980 campaign as the backup behind Tony Bell, a junior with outstanding running ability. That threat to tuck the ball under his arm and take off is much needed since last year's attack averaged just 2.7 yards per rush.

The defense played superbly for eight games before the disaster against Millersville State. However, five SSC interceptions and two lost fumbles contributed mightily to the Gulls' downfall that afternoon.

Mike Pugh, who along with Brosmer and fullback Sam Alexander will be the SSC captains this fall, heads a rugged Sea Gull defense. Pugh, a senior, led the squad in tackles from his linebacker spot last year with 164 and teams with fellow linebacker Mike Burke, a junior, to give SSC plenty of range and quickness backing up their five-man front.

Senior noseguard Tim Fox will switch to tackle to make room for sophomore Bill Cafiero. Senior tackle Bryce Cox is the other returning lineman.

The defensive secondary returns: cornerbacks Roger Warren and Tom Dashiell; and safeties Fred Bess and Brian Difulgo.

Senior Ken Olson is the career leader in field goals and gives SSC a legitimate scoring threat inside the opposition's 40-yard line.
